A HELPING HAND?

Botox parties and lipo over lunch—plastic surgery may be the norm in Hollywood, but only a handful of stars 'fess up to a nip/tuck

BROOKE SHIELDS

While the Lipstick Jungle actress, 43, concedes that she has tried Botox, it seems she wasn't a convert to the popular procedure (she spent three months trying to frown). "It's a very foreign, man-made object in your body," says the mum of two. "I'm also attached to my face. It's been around in the public eye for so long."

MADONNA

Madonna, 50, is the queen of reinvention—and not just with her music. "I'm not against plastic surgery, I'm just against discussing it," says the age-defying singer, who is rumoured to have had several procedures, including an eye lift and Botox.

JESSICA SIMPSON

"I had that Restylane stuff—it looked fake to me," said Simpson, 28, of plumping her lips after her break-up with Nick Lachey in 2005. Despite insisting it was a one-off treatment, pouty pictures of the singer from November 2008 suggest otherwise.
